Learning Product Reflection:

1. I used the in depth information available in the online textbook for Module 7 Section 6. The reasons listed and explained for the uproar of WWI show that the war was not born overnight; a series of events involving some countries more than others occurred and alliances and enemies developed leading to violence.
2. The world power of the United States of America was not involved until April 1914, choosing to stay neutral to protect interest overseas but eventually declared war in an attempt to provide justice for the loss of innocence lives. This desire to help others may be an example of American Exceptionalism; something citizens witness frequently and recently such as the threat to get involved with Syria.
